Biography

Short Bio

Dan Jahn is a globally-seasoned entrepreneur, educator, and leadership expert with a unique blend of academic excellence and real-world business acumen. From founding a tech consulting company at 22 to establishing multiple successful ventures, Dan has consistently demonstrated the power of visionary leadership. With degrees from prestigious institutions in the US and UK, and experience ranging from the White House to Silicon Valley, Dan brings a wealth of cross-cultural insights to his work.

His track record of building high-performing teams across technology, arts, and education showcases the practical application of the leadership principles he teaches. A prolific author and consultant who has traveled to 68 countries, Dan's mission is clear: to empower the next generation of leaders to unlock their full potential and make a lasting impact in their organizations and beyond.

Long Bio

Born in Sri Lanka during his parents' Peace Corps service, Dan experienced a diverse upbringing across Asia, Europe and the USA, settling in Virginia for high school. At George Mason University, Dan pursued his entrepreneurial interests by starting a magazine and, driven by a desire for excellence and to help others reach their potential, his early career included competing, coaching and judging elite gymnastics. Dan's academic path took him from a White House internship to studying at Oxford University, spending a summer as a cliff diver/stuntman before graduating cum laude and completing graduate degrees in religious studies, economics, and international relations.

Dan founded a tech consulting company at 22, later founded the Rocky Mountain Digital Arts Center, a premier training facility focused on digital design, where he combined his passion for art and technology while empowering others and taught at colleges including the Denver University and Art Institutes. As CIO at ShowLabs, Dan helped design and build the world's premier content production agency for global outdoor apparel brands. Under his holding company The Raven Group, Dan also founded multiple businesses in fine art imaging and reproduction; NFT auctions; drone media services; commercial photography/video studio and equipment rental; and the short/midterm rental market, acquiring and renovating homes into unique vacation rentals and corporate housing.

Dan's personal work today involves exploring the world (68 countries and counting!) and extends to fine art photography, multidisciplinary consulting, and writing on diverse topics. He has published several books and has combined all of his experience to offer selective coaching and speaking, always aiming to unlock new potential in himself and others he guides on their leadership journeys.

Dan's journey has been one of varied pursuits, consistently striving for growth, excellence, and positive impact, and he is dedicated to empowering the next generation of leaders.
